A GREAT SIGHT!

Breezelets

There may not be so much madness in Ford's peace propagandist as may lead one to think.

Henry is the inventor of a new type submarine, particulars of which will be seen elsewhere.

Ford goes on his mission with the olive branch in one hand and the sale of his submarine in the other.

Which is the kaiser likely to accept?

Did you notice how quickly it was announced that Germany was ready for peace, directly the Forders sailed?

The season for the annual epidemic of fall colds is under full sway.

Had your share, yet? If not, it's coming your way.

A French scientist has written a book to prove that the ocean will never be evaporated.

Bing! goes another German hope.

Lord Kitchener recently saw the King of Greece.

But sugar plums to doughnuts, the Queen of Greece, who is the kaiser's sister, saw Constantine first.

It is said Henry Ford used his telescope on every sea gull on his way over to ascertain if by any chance he could discover if the dove of peace was following his ship.

A city paper recently asked its readers to say what they would do if they had five hundred million dollars.

"Go crazy!" were most of the answers given.

We might be able to tell what we could do with five hundred, if we had that much.

Often if a boy is real naughty his mother apologizes by saying, "He's just like his father."

It's doubtful whether the compliment is "agin" the boy or for him, in some cases.

The kaiser got to Vienna which at times, has felt as important as Paris.

Chinook Breezes

Next Tuesday, the 21st, the shortest day.

Next Wednesday, the 22nd, Winter commences.

The work in the local postoffice has greatly increased.

Chinook is liable to lose its popular station agent.

Rev. D. Simpson of Cereal was a Chinook visitor on Tuesday

Schools will close on the 23rd for the Xmas vacation.

Chinook's population increasing—in dogs.

The year 1915 is rapidly coming to a close—we're on the last week or two's lap.

Mr. C. R. Brownell has moved into his new residence on Third Ave East.

There are some 100 private granaries built around town, and more going up

Mr. M. L. Chapman has moved his house on his lot on Second Ave East. It looks rather lonesome at present.

W. Riner is putting up an addition to his house on Third Ave West, where the family will reside for the winter

Skaters and Curlers

Chinook's skating rink is getting well under way and will soon be ready for ye skaters and curlers.

Will Soon Be a Farmer

Dr. Rosenkrans has purchased 40 head of cattle. It looks as though it will soon be "Farmer Rosenkrans"

May Come to Tax Enforcement

At the last meeting of the village council a resolution was passed favoring the adoption of the tax enforcement return for the village.

Trying the Aid of a Bailiff

R.M. Sounding Creek is trying the aid of a bailiff in getting in their arrears of taxes. Also the R. M. of Golden Centre, No. 272, is to work the same experiment.

Got 'em Thinking, Anyway

Rev. Mr. Bateman's sermon last Sunday evening, on "Blessed are the peacemakers," &c, has set people thinking. It's a good thing to get some people thinking, anyway.

Let Us Have the Particulars

Those who intend going away for Xmas and also those having visitors, will you kindly let us know about it? Come in and see us, or drop us a line—we don't want to miss you out of our list.

VILLAGE COUNCIL

A New Submarine

INVENTED BY FORD, THE PEACEMAKER

I note that Mr. Henry Ford, the American motor car millionaire, whose works produce over a thousand cars daily, claims to have designed a small submarine that can be operated by two men and a motor. Its estimated cost is £1000, and its radius 50 miles. —Daily Mirror.

Not Sure

Between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 men have been enlisted under the plan of the Earl of Derby, director of recruiting, according to the Daily Sketch. The paper says this figure may be reduced under analysis and that it is quite possible that the figures relative to single men may prove to be below the required standard.

APATHY IN MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS

NOT A GOOD SIGN

So far, one cannot help noticing that from the returns of the municipal nominations and elections, pretty well throughout the province there appears to have been a great lack of interest by electors in the municipal affairs of the R. M.'s, villages and towns.

Even in Calgary, editorially the Herald says: "One of the most apathetic municipal elections that Calgary has known for many a year happened yesterday."

In many of the small towns and villages, only one candidate offered for nomination, and even in some cases not any; and second nominations are necessary to get enough men to form the councils. An election has been a rare thing this year, outside of the cities.

This should not be, and it is not a good thing for any community when local interest in the "home town" are allow to become stagnant and practically dead. Every town and community needs the services of its very best citizens.

It does not augur well for the place's prosperity and growth when its business men and others have "no time" to devote to town affairs—the town soon passes on to the stage when there are very few affairs to look after. Other nearby towns have forged on ahead, and left the laggard far behind.

IN CHINOOK

In 1914 nomination, one man only was nominated, and a second nomination was necessary to get the other two councillors. This year four nominations were received, but three have resigned, necessitating a second nomination to fill the two vacancies.

The election in ward 2 of the R. M. of Collingwood, the only ward in which there was a contest, resulted in the return of O. D. Harrington over John Allen, the old councillor, by a vote of 9 to 6. As the total of votes cast indicates, very little interest was taken in this contest by the electors.

150 LOADS WAITING IN LINE TO UNLOAD AT ELEVATOR

The opening of the new 35,000 bushel annex to the Alberta Pacific elevator here on Wednesday, was a sight that has seldom been witnessed, and gave but a slight idea of the quantity of wheat that has been harvested in this district this year. Some 150 loads were waiting to get a show to unload, and if there were but room this number could easily have been duplicated over and over again, and then some. The loads were numbered, thereby saving a great deal of confusion and trouble, as each man knew when his turn came. Several photos were taken of the remarkable scene

Valuable Specimens

From Frozen North

D. Anderson of Stefansson Party and Companions Have Got Them

Tales of exciting adventures and of the acquisition of valuable specimens from the frozen north are reported to the Naval Service Department, at Ottawa by D. Anderson of the southern party of explorer Stefansson.

When the explorer comes back to civilization he will bring a rare collection of biological and zoological specimens, probably the most valuable of any ever brought out from the North.

Dr. Jenness, the ethnographical expert of the party, has secured many phonographic records of Eskimo songs and their language. Moving pictures of the diminutive people have also been secured.

Johnansen, the biologist of the party, has obtained an extensive collection of fauna and insects while Anderson himself has secured five hundred specimens of birds, three eagles and nests, and photos of Arctic animals. Much of their collection has already been shipped to Ottawa.

Zoologists with the expedition surveyed the Arctic shores from Cape Klenksens to Cape Bathurst, and have restituted the coastline roughly laid down by previous explorers.

Anderson was caught in the ice of Baffin Island, where the ship was forced to winter. During the winter of 1914 he attempted to get in touch with civilization at Fort Norman, on the Mackenzie River, but the snow was so heavy that the attempt was abandoned.

For publications, the Irish Voice of Chicago, and the Narodni List, a Croatian paper of New York, have been excluded from the mails under the provisions of the War Measures Act.

Find Strange Tribes

New Primitives Discovered in Siberian Wilds by University Expedition

A remarkable tribe of primitives who live in wigwams, live on meat, and consider reading and writing an accomplishment, has been discovered in the wilds of Siberia by the Siberian expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

The first reports concerning this tribe, known as the "Fungus of Northern Siberia," were received recently from London, where the expedition is preparing a complete report of its 100-mile journey.

The "Fungus" know nothing of an outside world, says the report, and have no religion, save that they believe in certain good and evil spirits to be propitiated. They are Mongolians and speak a highly inflected tongue, with a philosophy of life which is "not much, laugh much," and says the report, they live up to this dictum. They are enormous eaters, and are full of jokes.

Don't Submit to Asthma. If you suffer without hope of breaking the chains which bind you do not put off another day the purchase of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Remedy. A trial will drive away all doubts as to its efficacy. The sure relief that comes will convince you more than anything that can be written. When you have no more asthma, you will wonder, "How did I suffer?" This matchless remedy is sold by dealers everywhere.

"Some men have no hearts," said the tramp. "I've been a tellin' that fellow I am so dead broke that I have to sleep outdoors."

"Didn't that fetch him?" asked the other.

"Naw. He tol' me he was a doin' the same thing, and had to pay the doctor for tellin' him to do it."

FREE TO ALL SUFFERERS

There are three things that must be considered to build up a herd of good cows. First, good food, then care. No matter how well bred a cow may be, unless she is properly fed and cared for, her production and individuality, she will not do as she should. Then if she is well bred, well fed and well properly cared for, she is still a failure. She must be kept comfortable, quiet and contented. She needs good light, good air, plenty of water and kind treatment. Good cows are not developed by harsh treatment and discipline. They are a milk stool or fork handle when she is approached is at any wonder she is nervous and disquieted. If the contrary she never knows fear and as you sit down to milk her she thinks you are the milk pail, and she will not let you figure that kind treatment pays in dollars and cents, or from any point of view.

Prairie Market for Lumber

The farmers of the prairie spent little money last year in buildings and other improvements which could be deferred. They were busy with the war, and the psychological influence of hard times in the towns affected those farmers who had a position to build. The lumber market in the west has been good for two years, but this year's crop will encourage the farmer to make himself a home. He will use the lumber more liberally by using for building purposes some of the money that is pouring in—Vancouver News-Advertiser.

GERMANY NOW AT BREAKING POINT UNDER HEAVY STRIKE OF THE WAR

HAS RESOLVED INTO A QUESTION OF HOLDING ON

The Distinctive Military Quality of the British is Their Ability to Hold on, and in the Face of Repeated Reverses, to Live Up to Their Ancient Reputation of Winning Out

A neutral who professes some knowledge of military history asserts that the other day that Berlin was never able to win more than one great fight in any of her wars, but that it always happened to be the last one. Beneath the examination of this opinion may be discerned the distinctive military quality of the British, namely, their ability to hold on, and in the face of repeated reverses to come cheerfully and confidently in the morning, where they have been unsuccessful ever since there was a British nation. In the present war it has been made plain that the British has lost none of its nobler qualities, and there is doubt in no quarter as to the final issue of the war. This war has come to be a question of holding on, and bitter and desperate though the fight is, our people are entitled to a knowledge of the fact that in Germany the pressure of the war is becoming daily more oppressive. A respondent of the New York Herald at Zurich, who has been travelling in Germany, finds that a great change has come over the people in the past six months.

He hears talk of quitting; the upper classes are not victory, but continue to hope for victory. Nevertheless, it is peace they desire above all things. Their fighting spirit is not rising, even though the title of their armies' victories shows little sign of turning. On the surface, the people are with the government and no open criticism of the Kaiser appears, but underneath the fine German sentiment with the continuance of the war, which the Germans had expected to be over before now, the people are passing takes its heavy toll of German lives and imposes fresh hardships upon the masses of the people. The newspapers are now venturing to publish letters from the front which discourage the notion that the German soldiers are supermen. Germans in the trenches are allowed to inform the people at home that the German military resources are not exclusive German characteristics, and even to rebuke those who continue to muddy their heads.

He says that the recent peace demonstration ordered by the Cardinal Archbishop of Cologne, which he held impossible six months ago, and though the actual procession was frustrated at the last moment by the authorities, they feared to interrupt the preparations which had preceded it, knowing very well that the Cardinal represents the feeling in the Rhine provinces and in other parts of Western and Southern Germany where the majority of the people are Roman Catholics. For months past the Archbishop has been advocating peace, and when he announced that upon September 26 there would be a

Heroic French Troops

Writer Tells of Wonderful Work of the French Soldiers

After a visit to the whole French front, Edmond Houdart says: "I have seen an unforgettable spectacle: German trenches on the left, battered by artillery and taken by main force. Never before has the world had an opportunity to witness such a glorious effort as that of our troops in this circumstance. The German trenches were regular fortresses, which resisted the battering of our guns, but could not resist the admirable impact of our soldiers charging with the bayonet."

"When one has seen what I have seen one gets the impression that the French soldier of this great war—has been accomplished acts of superhuman heroism, the most heroic soldier in history."

"I carry away with me also an impression of the French soldier, a man of great courage and manly qualities, who stands behind our soldiers as a wall which no power on earth could destroy."

"The greater than a fighting army: it is a nation in arms, moved by one impulse. The French soldier of this great war—has been accomplished acts of superhuman heroism, the most heroic soldier in history."

"The troops I have seen are not young. They were of all ages, mixed together. Hats off to those magnificent, terrible fighting side by side with their children and nephews. They have commanded the admiration of their chiefs by their endurance and kindness."

"The grape shot has moved down men of 45 and youths of 18, a springtime smile on their lips on the same field of honor."

"No nation has ever before concentrated all its forces in an impetus as unanimous as beautiful as this. Such troops were created for a brilliant victory."

"The morale of our soldiers has been forged from the same steel as our guns. It is of the purest metal. And everywhere along the line the cry of victory is spreading its wings to acclaim our triumphant colors."

How the Range is Found

The Range Finder is an Important Instrument Used on Warships

One of the most important instruments used on a warship is the range finder, for without this instrument it is practically impossible to aim the guns accurately, without first incurring a serious delay in getting the range by trial shots. Range finders are of two principal types, the optical and the mechanical. The optical range finder is the most common, and is used for all objects of the ship or other objects in the water. It consists of two object glasses, one located near each end and on the side of the tube, being reflected and refracted by a system of mirrors and prisms so that both are brought to the eye of the observer who looks through the eyepiece located at the middle of the tube and on the opposite from the object glasses.

The right-angle optical glass transmits only the upper half of the object sighted and the left-hand object glass the lower half. When sighting on a ship for example, the right-angle optical glass will show the upper half of the ship so long as the instrument is held horizontally from the lower part of the ship. The mechanical range finder is a thumb screw that moves one of the object glasses, and carries the distance in yards to the ship.

Canada's war expenditure for next year will be very large. About $100 million per annum is calculated as the cost of raising, equipping and maintaining the troops at the front and under arms in Canada. This estimate will probably be exceeded on account of the enormous expenditure of ammunition and the heavy strain upon the railways and the Canadian war effort.

About $100 million per annum is calculated as the cost of raising, equipping and maintaining the troops at the front and under arms in Canada. This estimate will probably be exceeded on account of the enormous expenditure of ammunition and the heavy strain upon the railways and the Canadian war effort.

Canada's war expenditure for next year will be very large. About $100 million per annum is calculated as the cost of raising, equipping and maintaining the troops at the front and under arms in Canada. In A Nutshell

About One Hundred Million Dollars Spent Annually on Liquor in the Dominion

As prohibition of the liquor traffic during the war has been discussed let us briefly consider whether such action is necessary and whether the people would benefit.

About one hundred million dollars are spent in drink every year in the Dominion. Against Great Britain it is conceded that ten per cent. of all deaths are caused directly or indirectly by drink. If we adopt one-half of that percentage for Canada it gives us about five thousand deaths caused by drink in Canada every year. Where there are so many deaths there must be a much larger number who are more or less injured by it. We shall certainly be within the mark if we say that ten thousand persons are killed and injured every year by drink. It has been shown in several places that it costs about five times as much to support a drunkard as a sober man. It does much harm and entails so much further expense it seems needless to discuss it.

Reports from many places show that the burden of taxation is greater in wet than in dry towns. In some places the tax rate is double. The having in mind the fact that more than the license fees, these statements are not mere theory; they have actually occurred in many places and the properly following prohibition confirms them.

So much for the needed prohibition even in peace times, but do the people want prohibition? In Ontario they have voted on three different occasions by large majorities in favor of prohibition and there is no evidence that they have changed their minds. Again nearly three-fourths of the municipalities of Ontario have adopted local prohibition of their own accord and are so well satisfied with it that not one has repealed it in the past five years, notwithstanding all the efforts of the powerful liquor traffic.

Strong indication of the trend of public opinion is found in the fact that a number of our best papers and magazines refuse to carry liquor advertisements and many of our best writers are in favor of prohibition who are the majority of our best writers.

The liquor interest is composed not only of the manufacturers and sellers of liquor, but all those who make profit out of the business, either directly or indirectly.

This is only a partial survey of the question.—J. Arnold, M.B., M.C.P.S.

A lantern should always be hung up specially in the barn or stable. It should never be set on the floor, where it may be easily tipped over.

One day little Flora was taken to have an aching tooth removed. That night, while she was saying her prayers, her mother was surprised to hear her say: "And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

VICTORY FOR CAUSE OF ALLIES IS AS CERTAIN AS THE SUNRISE

GERMANY IS BEATEN BY BRITAIN AT EVERY TURN

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Writes an Article for the United States Press, and Strongly Combats the View that the War to Date has been Unfortunate for Great Britain

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has written for the U.S. press a vigorous article, in which he combats the view that the war to date has been unfortunate for Great Britain. He scores the British for their national weakness of self-depreciation, and proceeds to say in part:

"Yet in our hearts of hearts we are as certain of victory as that tomorrow's sun will come, and a dispassionate history will satisfy any student of the past. No great war in which our country has ever been engaged has been marked in the same space of time by such triumphant success as those of the last four years."

"Our troubles have been those of our people, not of our country. We have been our own worst enemy. Germany can make a good showing up to date against the British Empire. Against Great Britain she has been beaten at every turn."

"Consider what we have done in this war. We have won the war against Napoleon. We have won the war against the German Empire. We have won the war against the Ottoman Empire. We have won the war against the Russian Empire. We have won the war against the Japanese Empire. We have won the war against the Italian Empire. We have won the war against the American Empire. We have won the war against the Chinese Empire. We have won the war against the Indian Empire. We have won the war against the African Empire. We have won the war against the European Empire. We have won the war against the world."

"Not only have we nothing to regret, but we have much to be proud of. We have won the war against Napoleon. We have won the war against the German Empire. We have won the war against the Ottoman Empire. We have won the war against the Russian Empire. We have won the war against the Japanese Empire. We have won the war against the Italian Empire. We have won the war against the American Empire. We have won the war against the Chinese Empire. We have won the war against the Indian Empire. We have won the war against the African Empire. We have won the war against the European Empire. We have won the war against the world."

"Beforehand, thanks to the firmness of our British first lord of the Admiralty, 1908-1911, in the matter of eight great ships and the driving of the German fleet from the North Sea, we were in a position to win the war before the war, our navy was ready as it had never been before for a surprise attack."

"Of the four army corps, which are the most that we had ever thought of sending into the field, we had only one in the field, and the others followed. We played our cards well. We played it well. We won our game, so far as we can count gains and losses between Germany and ourselves."

"If Mr. McKenna and Mr. Churchill put us in a strong position upon the matter of the Haldane (ex-war secretary) for the last four years, we won our game, so far as we can count gains and losses between Germany and ourselves."

"We have won the war against Napoleon. We have won the war against the German Empire. We have won the war against the Ottoman Empire. We have won the war against the Russian Empire. JOURNALISTIC HOT SHOT.

Now Papers Talked In the Days of William Lyon Mackenzie.

How times have improved in Canada and other parts of the world in three-quarters of a century is realized by few. Through the courtesy of Mr. J. Turnbull of Hamilton we have examined a couple of copies of "The Volunteer," a little paper published by William Lyon Mackenzie at Rochester, N.Y., during the period of his exile there, following the troubles of 1837, which throw interesting light on the subject. Mr. Mackenzie conducted what was certainly a lively and personal sheet, which in these two issues reflects not only his own troubles, his warfare with government in Canada and the unhappy lack of sympathy that existed between various classes in Canada and in Britain even so recently as 1838.

"Dr. Wolfford Nelson," we read as an item of significance, "has come to an understanding with the authorities and returned to Montreal." But for Mackenzie there was as yet no such good fortune. In the following extract we see a suggestion of the bitter struggle the little patriot had to endure from day to day:

"While the Grass Grows the Seed Starves."—I agree, most respectfully and earnestly entreat those who possess an intimate knowledge of my true character and conduct for many years past to bestir themselves in support of this little Volunteer, to publish 1200 copies of which weekly and maintain a large family. I find a very heavy task, because money is withheld which could meet expenses. There is now only one liberal paper in Upper Canada, The Toronto Examiner. Thomson has bought, bribed, or cajoled the editorial corps, and the friends of his yoke hope to starve me out also.

Even in the death notices of The Volunteer there was the sting of bitterness, as, for example:

"Died—At Toronto, on the 9th ult., Adam, eldest son of James Shannon. At Trafalgar, the wife of Geo. Chalmers, one of the assassins who burns the Caroline."

There is a real personal touch in this notice, constituting the only advertisement in the paper:

"Unusually Lost.—A large brown cotton one, in May last, black handle, with white pearl on the end, and the letters W. L. M. It may be returned to this office, Clinton street."

For those who think Britain has fallen upon unprecedented evil days there is much comfort in the following extract:

"In Great Britain there are 1,000 usury shops or banks, 20,000 established priests, fat and sleek, 4,000 millions of national debt, 20,000 armed soldiers to frighten the people, 200,000 tax-gatherers to fleece them, corn laws to make them pay double its value for the loaf they eat, and a nobility the counterpart of our United States or safety fund bank gentry. What follows? From the remarks of Mr. Villiers in the British House of Commons on the Sugar duties, we have gleaned some frightful truths concerning the situation of the poor in England and Ireland. He says that in France at least 10,000 persons were without even a blanket to cover them." In Bolton, Blackburn, Oldham, and many other places, wretchedness and want were equally prevalent. At Thirham, "a farmer's cow which had died and had been buried was disinterred and one of the farmers served as food for twenty families!!!" In Leicester, people were actually eating from the swill tubs of the pigs! From poor, afflicted Ireland the accounts are equally distressing, "Human Beings," says Mr. Villiers, "are being subsisting on a diet which in England would scarcely be given to the dogs!"

Ceilings and Ventilation.

Rooms with low ceilings or with ceilings even with the window tops are susceptible of more perfect ventilation than those with high ceilings. In such rooms the leakage at the windows, which is constantly going on, keeps the air in motion throughout the room, whereas if the ceiling is higher only the lower part of the air is moved, and an inverted lake of foul and hot air is left floating in the space above the window tops. This lake, under the law of diffusion of gases, keeps actively at work, fouling the fresh currents circulating beneath it.

JERSEY COAST TO RIVAL NEWPORT WHEN CAPITAL MOVES

Photos by American Press Association.

1.—Interior view of Shadow Lawn. 2.—Exterior of new summer capital. 3.—Interior view of White House in Washington. 4.—Grounds of new "Summer White House." 5.—View of White House in Washington. 6.—A scene on the grounds at Shadow Lawn.

IN the acceptance by President Wilson of Shadow Lawn as a summer home for himself and his bride those who know the Jersey coast look for something more than the location of the summer capital at Elberon. They look for a revival of the old days when Long Branch was Long Branch and the rival of Newport as a social center, with a gaiety that the Rhode Island resort never knew.

That glory departed many years ago, though the hope eternal of good times to come again has never been present in the breasts of those who longed for the lively days and the livelier nights. In a way, the life that the old north coast of Jersey used to know will not come back. There are no Morrisseys now to run clubhouses where the limit of play was the roof, nor would public opinion permit them to do business if they were still among the living, but a gay quiet life, where entertainment will follow entertainment and dance follow dance, is looked for.

To this the coming of the president with his bride is expected to contribute the controlling impulse—a bride in the White House has ever meant a brilliant season—with the influx of diplomats and high government officers, who in other years have gone to the New England coast for their summers, adding their fair share, while scores of well known people whose fathers and grandfathers knew what summer was in that part of the country, but who themselves have been to a great extent strangers there, are expected to renew, in part at least, the family allegiance.

Shadow Lawn, which in itself stands as a monument to the glories of other days, thus becomes the center of the new glories that are to be after years of vicissitudes, in which it passed through several hands and on each was the traditional white elephant.

Many Rooms at Shadow Lawn.

In the White House by the sea, as Shadow Lawn will now be known, the president and his bride will find plenty of room. When the house was built economy of space or money was the last thing thought of, and the result was suit after suit, each one seemingly larger than the other. To run it at least a score of house servants will be necessary—double that number will be none too many if there is much entertaining—while as many more are needed to keep the fifty acres of lawn and shrubs in order, not to mention the work necessary in the garage big enough to accommodate a score of cars. Indeed, the garage building itself is larger than the so called cottages of many well known New York residents in that part of New Jersey in the summer months.

Surrounded by fifty acres of lawn and nearly thirty other acres under cultivation or improved as a wooded park, the house itself is not easily accessible from the outside world. Broad drives wind out to Norwood and Cedar avenues, which bound the property on the east and south, and a box hedge running along the entire place discourages the overquisitive passerby. Costly shrubs and trees are scattered everywhere.

The north windows of the house look out on a miniature forest. Although the effect is that of perfect wildness, each tree has its own course of treatment and trimming mapped out for it. A shaded tennis court, with canopied seats for spectators, hides behind a clump of maples in the park, and no far away is a roomy outdoor swimming pool.

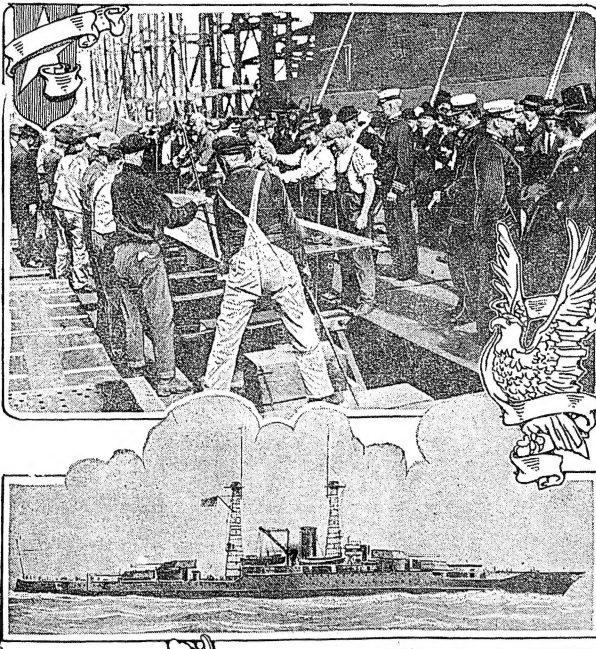

Deep enough at one end for the most adventurous diver and shallow enough at the other for the smallest of kiddies to splash around in, the pool nestles in a grove of overhanging trees so naturally that one half expects to see a deer push its way through the nearby bushes and come down for a drink at the brim. A rustic dressing house at one end fits perfectly into the picture.

The three greenhouses, which will eventually furnish decorations for the summer White House, have been enhanced and improved—everything, from rare, yellow orchids to hardy touch trees, blooms or bears, as the case may be, under the superintendent's practiced hand.

Should the notification committee drop in next summer to tell the president that he is again the choice of the Democratic party it will first be ushered into the spacious reception hall, measuring 75 by 35 feet. Above the group a glass dome surrounding a central court will catch its eyes. If it is evening, with the beautiful effect of its 200 or more concealed lights.

The bedroom suits, all with private baths, open on to galleries circling the court on the second and third floors. The white staircase leads to the mezzanine floor, which, with its grand plan, serves also as a music room. Above this floor is a roof garden, spacious enough to accommodate the entire notification committee and a host of President Wilson's friends besides.

Electricity Will Run Biggest American Battleship

Laying the California's keel and the vessel as she will appear when completed.

WORK on the battleship California, the keel of which was recently laid, is progressing well at the Brooklyn navy yard. The California has been designed with an eye to the adaptation of all modern improvements in vessels of war and will be one of the three battleships which will be the largest and most effective ever built for our navy and will rank favorably with the great superdreadnaughts of European powers.

No keel laying has ever created the interest in this country that attaches to the recent ceremony. The California tenor of his remarks indicated that the government would obey the will of the people.

For the first time Secretary Daniels told the story of the great superdreadnaught that is to be. "The uses," he said, "to which electricity has been put are well known, but it seems significant that electric propulsion for the modern battleship is first to be installed upon the splendid man-of-war whose keel we have met to lay. The electric drive is one of the latest results of the pioneer spirit in the utilization of electric force. It is a source of pride that the American navy is initiating the movement for its use upon battleships."

"It may be said that the battleship California represents one of the greatest advances in modern marine engineering. Electric propulsion has been widely discussed in all countries for several years, but the United States is the only nation which has got past the discussion stage. For two years and a half the 26,000 ton collier Jupiter has been using the only electrical high power marine installation afloat."

"The California is the logical outcome of the department's experiments on the Jupiter, and she will be the first battleship in the world to be propelled by electricity. The combination of the electric drive and oil fuel will enable her, at ten knots speed—the speed always calculated by navy experts for endurance—to steam for nine days longer than a coal burning dreadnaught. In other words, the California will be able to steam nearly twice as far as the Wyoming or Arkansas."

"Her sister ships, building at Newport News and Camden respectively, will carry the California's distinction of being the largest battleships yet built or building for our navy. The limit of cost of each of these men-of-war, exclusive of armor and armament, is $7,800,000, while the actual contract prices of the three vessels show a considerable saving from these figures. The California completed will represent an outlay of about $15,000,000."

"The fourteen inch guns which she is to mount, having extreme battle ranges and greater striking power than any naval gun now in use, offer the advantage of allowing the mounting of twelve of them on a single ship, as against eight guns of the fifteen inch type which have been adopted by some other navies."

"With a length over all of 624 feet, a length on water line of 500 feet and extreme breadth of 97 feet 4½ inches; with a draft of thirty feet, a displacement of 32,000 tons and a speed of twenty-one knots, and with an armament, in addition to her twelve fourteen-inch high powered guns in four turrets, of a secondary battery of twenty-two five-inch rapid fire guns, and with four submerged torpedo tubes capable of firing the largest type of torpedoes, the California will be one of its most formidable ships of war afloat."

Resting Place Near Well.

Wandering from the pool down one of the many sequestered paths, the president and his bride, on their first tour of inspection, will eventually find their way to the picturesque old well, with its pointed thatched covering, a relic of the days when the estate was a prosperous farm. Sheltered by clumps of evergreens and shadowed by taller maples, the well, with its resting place, cannot be seen from the house or the street. It is an ideal retreat from the cares of state or the burdens of society, or both.

Of What Use is a Music Room?

NO, IT isn't putting on airs to have a music room! It is the most sane of inventions. For, when the piano, for instance, is annoying to any one, it is annoying indeed. And a music room makes it possible for the musician to entertain himself or his friends undisturbed—and undisturbed!

EVERY FARM IS A FACTORY

Like any other factory, a farm requires a properly equipped plant. That means well designed buildings. The British Columbia Forest Service is publishing a series of bulletins on farm buildings, the plans for which, the bills of material, and instructions how to build, were prepared by the College of Agriculture of the University of Saskatchewan. The Forest Service has supplied information concerning the best wood to use

No expense or pains have been spared to make these bulletins of real value to the farmer. Even if you do not expect to build immediately, these bulletins will help you to work out your plans for extending or improving your plant and will enable you to find out the cost beforehand.

Any of the following bulletins in which you are interested will be mailed free upon application to the Chief Forester, Victoria, B.C. Complete reference sets will also be supplied to lumber dealers on request:

For information concerning British Columbia Lumber address W. H. Houston, Prairie Lumber Commissioner, 303 Dominion Building, Regina, Sask.
